Casein - National Casein Report for U.S. Imports

Report 28 - Released on July 15, 2021

Prices for rennet casein casein moved slightly higher on the top of the range. Despite quieter market activity in recent weeks, supplies are noted as tight due to both Chinese/domestic U.S. demand. Acid casein prices increased, most notably on the top of the range, which returned to $4.90 following last week's drop. New Zealand's acid casein production remains spoken for by Southeast Asian buying interests. Exports into China, namely, have increased notably in 2021. As New Zealand is at the onset of its production season, contacts are noting the rest of 2021 may exhibit firm market tones regarding both acid and rennet casein.
