Casein - National Casein Report for U.S. Imports

Report 1 - Released on January 06, 2022

The price ranges for acid casein and rennet casein both moved higher. Tight casein supplies, uncertainty about future production, and anxious buyers, all led to this result. Global demand for casein of both varieties is strong and getting stronger. Manufacturers are trying to increase production but are limited by the available milk. Buyers are increasingly contracting further into the future to allay concerns about supply availability.
