Dry Whey - Central U.S.

Report 28 - Released on July 14, 2022

Dry whey prices were unchanged on a very slow trading week. Cheesemakers are busy with plenty of milk in the summer months, but the strong discounts of previous weeks were not reported during week 28. There are some differing views on near term milk availability, while staffing shortness and plant downtimes are also creating more potential questions than answers. That said, dry whey demand is quiet, regardless. Domestic customers are hesitant, as markets have been under some noticeable pressure. Undoubtedly, Chinese slowdowns have affected the entire domestic, and global, markets. Animal feed whey prices were unchanged on relatedly slow trading. Whey market tones are somewhat bearish.
